

ABSTRACT

A technique for measuring noise contained in a video picture includes receiving a video picture signal and processing the video picture signal to detect at least one homogeneous picture region of the picture. For the at least one detected homogeneous picture region, a high-frequency signal component contained in the video picture signal is measured. The noise contained in the picture is determined from the high-frequency signal component and a noise signal is provided indicative thereof.